In the city of Rome itself, one can recognize a transformation of the Forum Romanum, at least from the construction of the aedes Divi Iulii dedicated in 42 BCE which truncated an earlier street and possibly the earlier Basilica Aemilia. The temple defined a new eastern edge of the open space, to which the later arcus Augusti was added in either 29 or 19 BCE. At this time we see the progressive elimination of vehicular and mercantile traffic from the central forum, with the effect of transforming the nature and role of civic space. BUT The characters and the romance ruined the whole thing.
